SEC. I. BE IT ENACTED by the Council and General Assembly of this State, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That an election for delegates, to meet in convention to frame a constitution for the government of this state, shall be held in the several counties of this state, on the eighteenth day of March next, at the places where the last annual election for township or city officers were held in the several townships or cities in this state; and that the said election shall be conducted and held by the same officers who held the last annual election for members of the legislature, except in those cases where new officers shall be elected prior to the eighteenth day of March next; and, in that case, said election shall be held by such newly elected officers, and shall, in all respects, be conducted, as nearly as may be, according to the law regulating the annual state election that may be in force on the said eighteenth day of March; provided, that every white male citizen of the United States, above the age of twenty-one years, who shall have resided within this state for one year next preceding the said election, and shall be an actual resident of the township or ward where he offers to vote, and in the county where he claims to vote, for three months next preceding such election, shall be entitled to vote for delegates to said convention.

SEC. II. And be it enacted, That the number of delegates to be chosen to such convention, by virtue of this act, shall be equal to the number of members of the General Assembly which the respective counties, at the time of such election, may be authorized by the then existing laws to elect, and shall be chosen in and by the respective counties.

SEC. III. And be it enacted, That each voter shall give his vote by a single ballot, which shall be a paper ticket, on which shall be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, the name or names of the person or persons for whom the voter intends to vote; and no ballot shall contain a greater number of names of delegates than that to which the county where such ballot is cast is entitled.

SEC. IV. And be it enacted, That the votes given at such election shall be canvassed, and the result certified by the same officers, according to the directions, as nearly as may be, of the laws regulating the election of members of the state legislature which shall be in force on the eighteenth day of March.

SEC. V. And be it enacted, That in the absence of any of the officers of said elections, such vacancy or vacancies shall be filled in the manner provided by the general election laws of this state.

SEC. VI. And be it enacted, That the delegates, so chosen as aforesaid, shall assemble at the State House, in Trenton, on the fourteenth day of May next: they shall be the judges of the qualifications, election, and returns of their own members; shall have power to choose a president and secretary, and all other necessary officers, and make such rules and regulations for the government of the convention as a majority of the delegates shall approve; and, before entering upon the discharge of their duties under this act, they shall severally take an oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States, and to perform the duties of their offices honestly and faithfully; which oath or affirmation shall be administered by the governor, or person administering the government of this state, or, in his absence, by the secretary of this state for the time being.

SEC. VII. And be it enacted, That when said convention shall have agreed upon a constitution to be submitted to the people of this state, they shall cause the same to be engrossed, and signed by the president and secretary, and delivered to the governor, or person administering the government of this state, under whose direction it shall be filed in the office of the secretary of this state.

SEC. VIII. And be it enacted, That there shall be paid to each member of the said convention the sum of two dollars per day, and to the president thereof, one dollar in addition, for each and every day they shall attend the sitting of said convention; and to each member of said convention, the further sum of two dollars for every twenty miles of the estimated distance, by the most usual route, between his place of residence and the seat of government, in going and returning, on a certificate, to be produced to the treasurer of this state, expressing the sum due and the number of days and miles, signed by the president of said convention; and the secretary and other officers of said convention shall receive such pay as a majority of said convention shall think right and proper: the contingent expenses of the convention shall be paid by the treasurer, on the warrant of the presiding officer.

SEC. IX. And be it enacted, That, for the purpose of ascertaining the sense of the people, as to the adoption or rejection of the constitution agreed upon by said convention, an election shall be held in the several counties of this state, on the second Tuesday in August next; and every person qualified to vote for delegates to the convention authorized by this act shall be entitled to vote at such election.

SEC. X. And be it enacted, That the said last mentioned election shall, in all respects, be conducted according to the law then in force regulating the election of members of the state legislature, excepting as herein otherwise provided, and shall be held under the direction of the officers appointed to hold and conduct the next annual state election, and at the places where the election for delegates shall have been holden under this act.

SEC. XI. And be it enacted, That the voting at said election shall be by ballot: and it shall be the duty of the officers conducting such election to receive tickets, written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, from citizens entitled as aforesaid to vote at said election, and to deposite them in a box provided for that purpose; the ballots of those persons voting for the adoption of the said constitution shall contain the word "Constitution," and those against its adoption, the words "No Constitution": and in case a majority of all the votes cast shall be given in favour of the adoption of the constitution, so as aforesaid submitted, it shall become and be declared the constitution of this state.

SEC. XII. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the officers of the said last mentioned election, in the several townships and wards of any city in this state, having first carefully estimated the number of votes given for or against the adoption of the said constitution, to make out duplicate returns thereof, in words at length, and not in figures only, to be signed by said officers, one of which shall be deposited in the clerk's office of the proper county, and the other sealed up, directed, and transmitted, by mail or otherwise, to the governor, or person for the time being administering the government of this state, at the city of Trenton; which said return, and duplicate thereof, shall be signed, deposited, sealed up, directed, and transmitted, as aforesaid, within five days after the close of the said last mentioned election: and in case no return shall have been received from any township or townships, ward or wards of any city corporate, by the governor, or person administering the government of this state, within ten days after the expiration of the time herein before prescribed, it shall be the duty of the governor, or person administering the government of this state, to send an express or expresses to procure such deficient return or returns, and to take such other means and measures as he may deem necessary for that purpose.

SEC. XIII. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the governor, or the person administering the government of the state, within ten days after receiving the returns of the last mentioned election, to lay them before a privy council, to be by him summoned for that purpose, in the State House in the city of Trenton; and, after casting up the whole number of votes given in the state at the said last mentioned election, the said governor, or person administering the government of the state, and said privy council, shall proceed to determine whether a majority of the votes are in favour of or against the adoption of the said constitution: and if the governor and council aforesaid shall determine that a majority of the votes were cast in favour of the said constitution, the governor shall issue his proclamation, declaring that the constitution has been adopted by a majority of the votes of the people of this state, and shall direct that an election for such officers as may be required to be elected under and by virtue of the said constitution, shall be held at the time and in the manner prescribed in the said constitution, and take all other necessary measures to carry said constitution into effect.

SEC. XIV. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the governor of this state for the time being to issue his proclamation immediately upon the passage of this act, requiring all the persons whose duty it may be to hold and conduct the election authorized by the first section of this act, to attend at the times and places named in this act for holding the said election, and conduct the same according to law.

SEC. XV. And be it enacted, That in case one or more of the delegates elected to said convention shall die, remove out of this state, or become disqualified from serving in such convention, then it shall be the duty of the governor of this state for the time being to issue his proclamation, directing an election to be held at such time as he shall therein appoint, to fill such vacancy or vacancies; and that said election shall be conducted, in all respects, as is provided for the election of delegates under this act.

SEC. XVI. And be it enacted, That as soon as the said constitution shall have been deposited in the office of the secretary of state, it shall be the duty of the governor of this state for the time being to cause the same to be published in each of the newspapers printed in this state, for the space of six weeks, successively, at least once in each week, for the information of the people.

SEC. XVII. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect upon the passage thereof.

RULES TO BE OBSERVED AS THE STANDING ORDERS OF THE CONVENTION.

1st. A house, to do business, shall consist of a majority of the whole number of delegates; but a less number may meet and adjourn from day to day, and fifteen may call the house, and send for the absent members.

2d. The president shall take the chair every day at the hour to which the convention shall have adjourned on the preceding day, shall immediately call the members to order, and, on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the journal of the preceding day to be read, that any mistake therein may be rectified. He shall preserve order, prevent personal reflections, and confine members to the question under discussion. He shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the convention on a motion to that effect, made and seconded; and such appeal shall be decided without debate. When two or more members rise at the same time, he shall name him who shall speak first. He may call any member to perform the duties of the chair; but such substitution shall not (except in committee of the whole) extend beyond an adjournment. He shall appoint all committees, unless, in special cases, it shall be otherwise ordered by the convention. He shall order the yeas and nays, at the request of any five members, on any question which may arise before the convention.

In case of the absence of the president, a president pro tempore may be chosen by a majority of the members present; who, while he so officiates, shall have all the powers, and perform all the duties of the president.

3d. The order of business for each day (after reading and correcting the journal,) shall be as follows, viz:

1. The presentation of original resolutions, propositions, and other papers.

2. Reports of such committees as shall be ready to report.

3. Business up before the convention, and unfinished at the last adjournment.

4. Special orders of the day.

5. Promiscuous business.

4th. Every member rising to speak, shall address himself to the president; and, while speaking, none shall pass between him and the chair, or hold discourse with another, or in any way cause interruption or disturbance.

5th. A member shall not speak oftener than twice on the same question without leave, and not the second time, until every other member shall have had an opportunity of speaking.

6th. No member shall absent himself from the house without leave, except in case of sickness or other personal disability; nor shall he refuse to vote on any question, unless excused for special reasons.

7th. Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if the president or any member requests it, and all motions entered on the journal, shall be entered in the names of those who make them. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order (except when a vote is being taken) and shall be decided without debate; and a motion to lie on the table shall also be decided without debate.

8th. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone, or to commit or amend; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are here arranged.

9th. A question which is divisible, shall at the request of any member be divided, and put separately upon the propositions of which it is compounded; and all questions shall be put in the order in which they are moved, except in cases of amendment and in filling up blanks, when the amendment last proposed, the largest sum, greatest number, longest time and most distant day, shall be first put.

10th. When a question has been once decided, either in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the majority to move a reconsideration thereof, either on the same or the succeeding day; which motion shall require a majority of the whole number of delegates to sustain it.

11th. The previous question shall be in this form, "SHALL THE MAIN QUESTION BE NOW PUT?" It shall be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, be decided without debate, and until decided shall preclude all further discussion of the main question; but when ordered it shall not cut off pending amendments.

12th. Any business before the convention may be made the order of a particular day; but it may be postponed, on the day, to some other specified time.

13th. After a motion or resolution is stated by the president, or read by the secretary, it shall be deemed to be in possession of the convention; but may be withdrawn by the mover, at any time before an amendment or decision.

14th. In forming committees of the whole, the president, before he leaves the chair, shall name a member to preside in committee; and the rules and orders of the convention shall be observed therein, so far as they may be applicable, except that the previous question shall not be put. A motion to go into committee, or that the committee rise, shall always be in order, and be decided without debate.

15th. All questions, on which the convention is about to vote, shall be distinctly stated by the president, and put in the following form, viz: "As many as are in favour of (the question) will say aye;" and after the affirmative is expressed, "those of a contrary opinion, no." If there be doubt, or a division be called for, those in the affirmative will rise first, and after being counted, and having resumed their seats, those in the negative will rise.

16th. No article or provision shall be finally adopted as a part of the constitution, nor shall the constitution be adopted, except by a majority of the whole number of delegates.

17th. Should any particular question or business arise before the convention, to which the adopted rules will not apply, then the rules of the General Assembly of this state, or any of them, so far as they will apply, shall govern any such particular question or business; and these rules may be suspended or amended, from time to time, by a majority of the whole number of delegates.

The committee to whom was referred the following resolution:

“Resolved, That so much of the constitution, to be formed by this convention, as relates to the legislative department, be referred to a committee to report thereon,” beg leave to report as follows:

THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

I. The legislative department of this state shall be vested in a Senate and General Assembly.

II. The Senate shall be composed of one senator from each county in the state, elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, for three years: and each senator shall have one vote.

III. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the first year; of the second class, at the expiration of the second year; and of the third class, at the expiration of the third year; so that one-third may be elected every year: and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only.

IV. The members of the General Assembly shall be annually elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, and shall be apportioned among the said counties according to the number of their inhabitants. The present apportionment to continue until the next census of the United States shall have been taken, when the same may be changed by the legislature, and shall then remain unaltered until another census shall have been taken; provided, that each county shall at all times be entitled to one member.

V. Each house shall direct writs of election for supplying vacancies, occasioned by death, resignation, or otherwise; but if vacancies occur during the recess of the legislature, the writs may be issued by the governor, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law.

VI. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

VII. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, may expel a member.

VIII. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house, on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

IX. Neither house, during the session of the legislature, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

X. All bills and joint resolutions shall be read three times in each house, before the final passage thereof; and no bill or joint resolution shall pass, unless there be a majority of all the members of each body personally present and agreeing thereto.

XI. The senators and members of the General Assembly shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the state; which compensation shall not exceed the sum of three dollars per day for the period of forty days from the commencement of the session, and shall not exceed the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per day for the remainder of the said session. They shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel, in going to and returning from their place of meeting, on the most usual route. The president of the Senate and the speaker of the House of Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their per diem allowance as members.

XII. The senators and members of the General Assembly shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sitting of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate, in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

XIII. No member of the Senate or General Assembly shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of this state which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time.

XIV. If any member of the Senate or General Assembly shall be elected to represent this state in the Senate or House of Representatives of the United States, and shall accept thereof, or shall accept of any office or appointment under the government of the United States, his seat in the legislature of this state shall thereby be vacated.

XV. That the legislative department may, as much as possible, be preserved from all suspicion of corruption, none of the judges of the supreme court, or of any other court, sheriffs, nor any person or persons possessed of any office of profit under the government of this state, or of the United States, shall be entitled to a seat, either in the Senate or in the General Assembly; but that on being elected, and taking his seat, his office shall be considered vacant.

XVI. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Assembly; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

XVII. No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but for appropriations made by law.

XVIII. The credit of the state shall not be directly or indirectly loaned in any case.

XIX. The legislature shall not, in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, of the state, which shall singly, or in the aggregate, at any time exceed one hundred thousand dollars, except for purposes of war, or to repel invasion, or to suppress insurrection, unless the same shall be authorized by a law for some single object or work, to be distinctly specified therein; which law shall impose and provide for a direct annual tax sufficient, with such other appropriations as may be made therein, exclusive of loans, to pay the interest of such debt or liability as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt or liability within twenty years from the time of the contracting thereof: and no such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received the sanction of a majority of all the votes cast for or against it at such election; and all money to be raised by the authority of such law shall be applied, only, to the specific object stated in such law, and to the payment of the debt thereby created.

XX. The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each house shall be requisite to the passage of every law appropriating public money or property to local or private use, and also to the passage of every law granting prerogative rights or special privileges, or for creating, continuing, or renewing private corporations, other than those for religious, literary, or charitable purposes: and all such laws may be altered, modified, or repealed by the legislature, whenever, in their opinion, the public good may require it.

XXI. All charters for banks or money corporations shall be limited to the term of twenty years, but may be renewed.

XXII. No county or township shall be created, nor shall the boundaries of any county or township be altered, without the assent of two-thirds of the whole number of members elected to each house to a law for that purpose, and without three months' public notice having been given of the time of applying for such law.

XXIII. No divorce shall be granted by the legislature.

XXIV. No lottery shall be authorized by this state, and the legislature shall pass laws to prevent the sale of all lottery tickets, except in lotteries which may now be authorized by a law of this state.

XXV. The legislature shall not pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts.

XXVI. To avoid improper influences, which may result from intermixing in one and the same act such things as have no proper relation to each other, every law shall embrace but one object, and that shall be expressed in the title.

XXVII. The laws of this state shall begin in the following style: "Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of this state, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same."

XXVIII. The fund for the support of free schools, and all the proceeds thereof, dividends, stocks, and other property, now or hereafter to be appropriated for that purpose, shall remain a perpetual fund, without diminution of the principal by the legislature, and shall be sacredly devoted to the encouragement and support of common schools, for the equal benefit of all the people of the state, in the mode prescribed, or hereafter to be prescribed, by the legislature, and to no other use or purpose whatever.

XXIX. The General Assembly shall have the sole power of impeaching all civil officers of the state for corrupt conduct in office or for crimes and misdemeanors; but a majority of all the members elected shall be necessary to direct an impeachment.

XXX. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments, and, when sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend farther than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, trust, or profit under this state; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law.

Signed, by the committee,

Mr. Vanarsdale, from the Committee on the Judiciary Department, made the following report :

The committee appointed by this convention on the judiciary department of the constitution to be formed, respectfully report—

I. That the judicial power of this state shall be vested in a court of errors and appeals in the last resort in all causes, as heretofore ; a court for the trial of impeachments ; a court of chancery ; a prerogative court ; a supreme court, and such other courts as now exist, and as may be ordained and established by the legislature.

The court of errors and appeals shall consist of the chancellor, the justices of the supreme court, and six judges, or a major part of them ; which judges are to be appointed for six years.

Immediately after the court shall first assemble, the chancellor, or, in his absence, the chief justice, or any justice of the supreme court, shall arrange the six judges in such manner that the seat of one of them shall be vacated every year, in order that thereafter one judge may be annually appointed.

Such of the six judges as shall attend the court, shall receive, respectively, such per diem compensation as shall be provided by law.

The secretary of state shall be the clerk of this court.

When an appeal from an order or decree shall be heard, the chancellor shall inform the court, in writing, of the reasons for his order or decree ; but he shall not sit as a member, or have a voice in the hearing or final sentence.

When a writ of error shall be brought, no justice who has given a judicial opinion or judgment in the cause, in favour of or against any error complained of, shall sit as a member, or have a voice on the hearing, or for its affirmance or reversal ; but the reasons for such opinion or judgment shall be assigned to the court in writing.

II. The House of Assembly shall have the sole power of impeaching ; and all impeachments shall be tried by the Senate :

the members, when sitting for that purpose, to be on oath or affirmation "truly and impartially to try and determine the charge in question: and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Senate present.

When a governor or chancellor is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and when a chief justice or an associate justice of the supreme court is tried, the chancellor shall preside. When the chancellor or chief justice shall preside, he shall have a vote when the members are equally divided on preliminary questions, but shall have no other vote.

The person impeached shall be suspended from exercising his office until his acquittal; and the judgment shall not extend farther than to removal from office and to disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, profit, or trust under this state; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable to indictment, trial, and punishment according to law.

The secretary of state shall be clerk of this court.

III. The court of chancery shall consist of a chancellor, who shall be appointed in the same manner, hold his office for the like term, and receive the same salary as the chief justice of the supreme court.

IV. The chancellor shall be the ordinary, or surrogate general, of the prerogative court.

All persons aggrieved by any order, sentence, or decree of the orphans' court, may appeal from the same, or from any part thereof, to the prerogative court; but such order, sentence, or decree shall not be removed into the supreme court, if the subject matter thereof be within the jurisdiction of the orphans' court.

The secretary of state shall be the register of the prerogative court, and shall perform the duties required of him by law in that respect.

V. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and five associate justices.

Six several terms of the court shall be held in each year.

Two of the said terms shall be held in the eastern part of the state, two in the middle part of the state, and two in the western part of the state, at such times and places as the legislature, from time to time, may ordain and establish.

Any one or more, and not exceeding three of the justices, shall hold the said courts at any of the said terms; but the concurrence of two of the justices shall be necessary to a decision in every controverted matter: and the said justices shall arrange among themselves to hold the courts, alternately, at said terms.

The present clerk of the supreme court, during his continuance in office, shall attend all said courts personally, or by a deputy appointed by him to act in his stead, until the legislature shall prescribe which of the said courts he shall statedly attend: and whenever there shall be two or more clerks of the said supreme court in office, each one, on the first and third Mondays in every month, shall transmit to the other, or others, a duly certified transcript of all the judgments which shall have been docketed since that time, and afterwards, since the time of making the previous transcript; which shall be a true transcript of the original docket that is to be kept in his office: and that no inconvenience may arise from this article being carried into effect, the supreme court shall continue to be held at the times and place when and where it is now held, until the fourth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five.

VI. One of the justices of the supreme court for the time being shall be one of the judges of the orphans' court now existing in and for the several counties of this state, in all cases, except every regular term of the said orphans' courts when no circuit court is held in the county, such orphans' court may be held without a justice of the supreme court; but nothing in this article contained shall at any time hereafter abridge or restrain the power of the legislature to alter, change, or annul the same, and ordain otherwise, as the public interest may require.

VII. There shall be not less than three, nor more than seven judges of the inferior court of common pleas, in and for each of the several counties of this state.

This provision shall take effect in each county, when the number of said judges now in office in said county shall not exceed seven.

IX. All justices of the supreme court, and all other judicial officers now holding any office or appointment from the joint-meeting of the legislature of this state, shall, respectively, continue in the exercise of the duties of their respective offices, according to their appointments, for the times allowed by law.

By order of the committee.

Art. VII. From amongst the judges of the inferior court of common pleas, now holding commissions in the respective counties of the state, five shall be selected and appointed to be judges of said court under this constitution; and after the commissions of the judges now in office shall expire, there shall be but five judges of said courts. The judges of the said court shall be appointed for the term of five years, and at the first term thereof, held in the respective counties, they shall arrange themselves in such manner that the seat of one of them shall be vacated every year, in order that one judge may be annually appointed or re-appointed. The legislature may at any time hereafter increase or lessen the number of associate justices of the supreme court, or change the mode, or terms, or places, of holding the same. The mode of appointing the six judges of the court of appeals may be changed, and their number increased, so that they shall never exceed in number the justices of the supreme court and the chancellor. Mr. Jaques, from the select committee appointed to inquire into the propriety of instituting a court of reconciliation, made the following report:

The committee to whom was referred the following resolution, viz:

“Resolved, That a select committee of five be appointed to inquire into the propriety of instituting a court, to be called the court of reconciliation, and that they report thereon,” report—

That your committee, having had under consideration the subject submitted to them, have made diligent inquiry, and have been informed that courts exist in one of the governments of Europe, and perhaps in more, constituted for the purpose of inducing reconciliation in all matters of controversy, previous to the recourse to legal proceedings. Your committee will briefly delineate the formation and duties of those courts.

In each town, or precinct, two persons are chosen by the people, who sit one day in each week, for the receiving of complaints, issuing summonses for the appearance of parties at the next regular day of meeting, and for hearing the parties already summoned. The courts sit with closed doors, and none but the parties themselves, or their special attorneys, are permitted to be present. The duty of the court is to hear the complaints and reply of the parties, and to endeavour to induce them to adjust their differences amicably. As an absolute rule, nothing that passes in the court, is divulged by the members of it, and is forbidden as evidence in the courts of law. Should the attempt for reconciliation fail, the court grants to each of the parties a certificate, stating that they had appeared, but did not reconcile their differences. These certificates are required by the courts of law, in order to oblige parties to seek reconciliation.

The fee of this proceeding is very trifling, and is paid by one or both of the parties, as may be decided by the reconciling judges.

Your committee suppose that it is unnecessary for them to say anything in recommendation of a tribunal so simple in its formation, and so evidently useful; but they cannot refrain from calling the attention of the convention to the fact of the numberless cases which are subjects of lengthy, expensive, and vexatious lawsuits, which have their origin in trifling differences between neighbours and friends, and which the amicable agency of a third party could reconcile and set for ever at rest.

Your committee, being aware that the proposition submitted to them is of a novel character, believe that the extent of their duty will be complied with by submitting, in addition to the remarks already made, the recommendation that there be engrafted on the constitution, in the first section of the report of the judiciary committee, the words—

That the legislature may ordain and establish courts of reconciliation.

VI. The General Assembly shall be composed of members annually elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. IX. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, may expel a member.

All bills and joint resolutions shall be read three times in each house, before the final passage thereof; and no bill or joint resolution shall pass, unless there be a majority of all the members of each body personally present and agreeing thereto: and the yeas and nays of the members voting on such final passage shall be entered on the journal.

XIII. The senators and members of the General Assembly shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the state; which compensation shall not exceed the sum of three dollars per day for the period of forty days from the commencement of the session; and shall not exceed the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per day for the remainder of the said session. When convened in extra session by the governor, they shall receive such sum as shall be fixed for the first forty days of the ordinary session. They shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel, in going to and returning from their place of meeting, on the most usual route. The president of the Senate and the speaker of the House of Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their per diem allowance as members.

XIV. The senators and members of the General Assembly shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sitting of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same: and for any speech or debate, in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

XV. No member of the Senate or General Assembly shall, during the time for which he was elected, be nominated or appointed by the governor, or by the legislature in joint meeting, to any civil office under the authority of this state, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time.

XVI. If any member of the Senate or General Assembly shall be elected to represent this state in the Senate or House of Representatives of the United States, and shall accept thereof, or shall accept of any office or appointment under the government of the United States, his seat in the legislature of this state shall thereby be vacated.

XVII. No justice of the supreme court, nor judge of any other court, sheriff, justice of the peace, nor any person or persons possessed of any office of profit under the government of this state, shall be entitled to a seat either in the Senate or in the General Assembly; but, on being elected and taking his seat, his office shall be considered vacant: and no person holding any office of profit under the government of the United States shall be entitled to a seat in either house.

XVIII. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Assembly; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

XIX. No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but for appropriations made by law.

XX. The credit of the state shall not be directly or indirectly loaned in any case.

XXI. The legislature shall not, in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, of the state, which shall singly, or in the aggregate with any previous debts or liabilities, at any time exceed one hundred thousand dollars, except for purposes of war, or to repel invasion, or to suppress insurrection, unless the same shall be authorized by a law for some single object or work, to be distinctly specified therein; which law shall impose and provide for a direct annual tax, sufficient with such other appropriations as may be made therein, exclusive of loans, to pay the interest of such debt or liability as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt or liability within thirty-five years from the time of the contracting thereof, and shall be irrepealable until such debt or liability, and the interest thereon, are fully paid and discharged: and no such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received the sanction of a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election: and all money to be raised by the authority of such law shall be applied only to the specific object stated in such law, and to the payment of the debt thereby created. This section shall not be construed to refer to any money that has been, or may be deposited with this state by the government of the United States.

XXII. No divorce shall be granted by the legislature.

XXIII. No lottery shall be authorized by this state; and no ticket in any lottery not authorized by a law of this state shall be bought or sold within the state.

XXIV. The legislature shall not pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or depriving a party of any remedy for enforcing a contract which existed when the contract was made.

XXV. To avoid improper influences, which may result from intermixing in one and the same act such things as have no proper relation to each other, every law shall embrace but one object, and that shall be expressed in the title.

XXVI. The laws of this state shall begin in the following style, "Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey."

XXVII. The fund for the support of free schools, and all money stock, and other property, which may hereafter be appropriated for that purpose, or received into the treasury under the provision of any law heretofore passed to augment the said fund shall be securely invested, and remain a perpetual fund; and the income thereof, except so much as it may be judged expedient to apply to an increase of the capital, shall be annually appropriated to the support of public schools, for the equal benefit of all the people of (throughout) the state; and it shall not be competent for the legislature to borrow, appropriate, or use the (same) said fund, nor any part thereof, for any other purpose, under any pretence whatever.

XXVIII. No private or special law shall be passed authorizing the sale of any lands belonging, in whole or in part, to a minor or minors or other persons who may at the time be under any legal disability to act for themselves.

XXIX. The assent of three-fifths of the members elected to each house shall be requisite to the passage of any law for granting, continuing, altering, amending, or renewing charters for banks or money corporations; and all such charters shall be limited to a term not exceeding twenty years.

XXX. Individuals or private corporations shall not be authorized to take private property for public use, without just compensation being first made to the owners.

XXXI. The legislature may at any time vest in the circuit courts or courts of common pleas within the several counties of this state, (the exercise of) chancery powers, so far as relates to the foreclosure of mortgages or sale of mortgaged premises.

XXXII. Members of the legislature of this state shall, before they enter on the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be,) that I will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of New Jersey, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of senator (or member of the General Assembly, as the case may be,) according to the best of my ability.”

And members elect of the Senate or General Assembly are hereby empowered to administer to each other the said oath or affirmation.

Executive.

I. The executive power of this state shall be vested in a governor.

II. The governor shall be elected by the legal voters of this state. The person having the highest number of votes shall be the governor; but if two, or more, shall be equal and highest in votes, one of them shall be chosen governor by the vote of the majority of the members of both houses, in joint-meetings: contested elections for the office of governor shall be determined in such manner as the legislature shall direct by law. When a governor is to be elected by the people, such election shall be held at the time when and at the places where the people shall respectively vote for members of the state legislature.

III. The governor shall hold his office for three years (from) to commence on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the (annual) election for governor by the people, and ending on the Monday preceding the third Tuesday of January, three years thereafter: and he shall be (ineligible) incapable (to) of holding that office for three years next after his term of service shall have expired; and (provided that) no appointments or nominations to office shall be made by the governor during the last week of his said term.

IV. The governor shall be not less than thirty years of age, and shall have been for twenty years, at least, a citizen of the United States, and a resident of this state seven years next before his election, unless he shall have been absent during that time on the public business of the United States or of this state.

V. The governor shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall be neither increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected.

VI. He shall be the commander-in-chief of all the military and naval forces of the state; he shall have power to convene the legislature, whenever in his opinion public necessity requires it; he shall communicate by message to the legislature, at the opening of each session, and at such other times as he may deem necessary, the condition of the state, and recommend such measures as he may deem expedient: he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and grant, under the great seal of the state, commissions to all such officers as shall by law be required to be commissioned.

VII. Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor: if he approve, he shall sign it, but if (he shall) not, (approve,) he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it: if after such reconsideration, a majority of the whole number of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved of by a majority of the whole number of that house, it shall become a law; but, in neither house shall the vote be taken on the same day on which the bill shall be returned to it: and in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively: if any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days, (Sunday excepted,) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

VIII. No member of Congress, or person holding an office under the United States, or this state, shall exercise the office of governor; and in case the governor, or person administering the government of this state, shall accept any office under the government of the United States, or of this state, his office of governor shall thereupon be vacant.

IX. The governor, or person administering the government, shall have power to suspend the collection of fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, to extend until the expiration of a time not exceeding ninety days after conviction; but this power shall not extend to cases of impeachment.

X. The governor, or person administering the government, the chancellor, and the six judges of the court of errors and appeals, or a major part of them, of whom the governor, or person administering the government, shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant pardons after conviction, in all cases except impeachment.

XI. The governor, and all other civil officers under this state, shall be liable to impeachment for misdemeanor in office.

XII. In case of the death, resignation, or removal from office of governor, the powers, duties, and emoluments of the office shall devolve upon the president of the Senate, and in case of his death, resignation, or removal, then upon the speaker of the House of Assembly for the time being, until another governor shall be duly elected and qualified; but in such case another governor shall be chosen at the next election for members of the state legislature, unless such death, resignation, or removal shall occur within thirty days immediately preceding such next election, in which case a governor shall be chosen at the second succeeding election for members of the state legislature. When a vacancy happens, during the recess of the legislature, in any office which is to be filled by the governor and Senate, or by the legislature in joint meeting, the governor shall fill such vacancy and the commission shall expire at the end of the next session of the legislature, unless a successor shall be sooner appointed: when a vacancy happens in the office of clerk or surrogate of any county the governor, shall fill such vacancy, and the commission shall expire when a successor is duly elected and qualified to fill the office.

XIII. In case of the impeachment of the governor, his absence from the state, or inability to discharge the duties of his office, the powers, duties, and emoluments of the office shall devolve upon the president of the Senate; and in case of his death, resignation, or removal, then upon the speaker of the House of Assembly for the time being, until the governor, absent or impeached, shall return or be acquitted, or until the disqualification or inability shall cease, or until a new governor be duly elected and qualified.

XIV. In case of a vacancy in the office of governor, from any other cause than those herein enumerated, or in case of the death of the governor elect before he is qualified into office, (the legislature shall have power to provide by law for filling such vacancy) the powers, duties, and emoluments of the office shall devolve upon the president of the Senate or speaker of the House of Assembly, as above provided for, until a new governor be duly elected and qualified.

XV. The returns of the votes for governor, at the first election under this constitution, shall be transmitted to the governor of the state, or the person administering the government, and shall be counted, and the election declared, in the manner now provided by law in the case of election of electors of president and vice president of the United States.

Judiciary.

I. That the judicial power of this state shall be vested in a court of errors and appeals in the last resort in all causes, as heretofore; a court for the trial of impeachments; a court of chancery; a prerogative court; a supreme court; circuit courts, and such inferior courts as now exist, and as may be hereafter ordained and established by law; which inferior courts the legislature may alter or abolish, as the public good shall require.

The court of errors and appeals shall consist of the chancellor, the justices of the supreme court, and six judges, or a major part of them; which judges are to be appointed for six years.

Immediately after the court shall first assemble, the six judges shall arrange themselves in such manner that the seat of one of them shall be vacated every year, in order that thereafter one judge may be annually appointed.

Such of the six judges as shall attend the court, shall receive, respectively, a per diem compensation to be provided by law.

The secretary of state shall be the clerk of this court.

A Constitution agreed upon by the delegates of the people of New Jersey, in convention, begun at Trenton on the fourteenth day of May, and continued to the — day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-four.

We, the people of the State of New Jersey, grateful to Almighty God for the civil and religious liberty which He hath so long permitted us to enjoy, and looking to Him for a blessing upon our endeavours to secure and transmit the same unimpaired to succeeding generations, do ordain and establish this constitution.

ARTICLE I.

RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES.

1. All men are by nature free and independent, and have certain natural and unalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and of pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness.

2. All political power is inherent in the people; government is instituted for the protection, security, and benefit of the people, and they have the right at all times to alter or reform the same, whenever the public good may require it.

3. No person shall be deprived of the inestimable privilege of worshipping Almighty God in a manner agreeable to the dictates of his own conscience; nor under any pretence whatever be compelled to attend any place of worship contrary to his faith and judgment; nor shall any person be obliged to pay tithes, taxes, or other rates, for building or repairing any church or churches, place or places of worship, or for the maintenance of any minister or ministry, contrary to what he believes to be right, or has deliberately and voluntarily engaged to perform.

4. There shall be no establishment of one religious sect, in preference to another. No religious test shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust; and no person shall be denied the enjoyment of any civil right, merely on account of his religious principles.

5. Every person may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right. No law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press. In all prosecutions or indictments for libel, the truth may be given in evidence to the jury; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libellous is true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the party shall be acquitted: and the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact.

6. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the papers and things to be seized.

7. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate; but the legislature may authorize the trial of civil suits, when the matter in dispute does not exceed fifty dollars, by a jury of six men.

8. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favour, and to have the assistance of counsel in his defence.

9. No person shall be held to answer for a criminal offence, unless on the presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases of impeachment, or in cases cognizable by justices of the peace, or arising in the army or navy, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger.

10. No person shall, after acquittal, be tried for the same offence. All persons shall, before conviction, be bailable by sufficient sureties, except for capital offences, when the proof is evident or presumption great.

11. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless in case of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

12. The military shall be in strict subordination to the civil power.

13. No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, except in a manner prescribed by law.

14. Treason against the state shall consist, only, in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

15. Excessive bail shall not be required, excessive fines shall not be imposed, and cruel and unusual punishments shall not be inflicted.

16. Private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation; but land may be taken for public highways, as heretofore, until the legislature shall direct compensation to be made.

17. No person shall be imprisoned for debt in any action, or on any judgment founded upon contract, unless in cases of fraud; nor shall any person be imprisoned for a militia fine in time of peace.

18. The people have the right freely to assemble together, to consult for the common good, to make known their opinions to their representatives, and to petition for redress of grievances.

19. This enumeration of rights and privileges shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

ARTICLE II.

RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.

1. Every white male citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of this state one year, and of the county in which he claims his vote five months, next before the election, shall be entitled to vote for all officers that now are, or hereafter may be elective by the people ; provided, that no person in the military, naval, or marine service of the United States shall be considered a resident in this state, by being stationed in any garrison, barrack, or military or naval place or station within this state ; and no pauper, idiot, insane person, or person convicted of a crime which now excludes him from being a witness, unless pardoned or restored by law to the right of suffrage, shall enjoy the right of an elector.

2. The legislature may pass laws to deprive persons of the right of suffrage who shall be convicted of bribery at elections.

ARTICLE III.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT.

1. The powers of the government shall be divided into three distinct departments—the legislative, executive, and judicial ; and no person or persons belonging to, or constituting one of these departments, shall exercise any of the powers properly belonging to either of the others, except as herein expressly provided.

ARTICLE IV.

3. Members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be elected yearly and every year, on the second Tuesday of October : and the two houses shall meet, separately, on the second Tuesday in January next after the said day of election, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence; but the time of holding such election may be altered by the legislature.

Section II.

1. The Senate shall be composed of one senator from each county in the state, elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, for three years.

The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the first year ; of the second class at the expiration of the second year ; and of the third class at the expiration of the third year ; so that one class may be elected every year : and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only.

Section III.

2. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

3. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, may expel a member.

4. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house, on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

6. All bills and joint resolutions shall be read three times in each house, before the final passage thereof; and no bill or joint resolution shall pass, unless there be a majority of all the members of each body personally present and agreeing thereto: and the yeas and nays of the members voting on such final passage shall be entered on the journal.

7. Members of the Senate and General Assembly shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the state; which compensation shall not exceed the sum of three dollars per day for the period of forty days from the commencement of the session, and shall not exceed the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per day for the remainder of the session. When convened in extra-session by the governor, they shall receive such sum as shall be fixed for the first forty days of the ordinary session. They shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel, in going to and returning from their place of meeting, on the most usual route. The president of the Senate and the speaker of the House of Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their per diem allowance as members.

8. Members of the Senate and of the General Assembly shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sitting of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same : and for any speech or debate, in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

Section V.

1. No member of the Senate or General Assembly shall, during the time for which he was elected, be nominated or appointed by the governor, or by the legislature in joint meeting, to any civil office under the authority of this state, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time.

2. If any member of the Senate or General Assembly shall be elected to represent this state in the Senate or House of Representatives of the United States, and shall accept thereof, or shall accept of any office or appointment under the government of the United States, his seat in the legislature of this state shall thereby be vacated.

3. No justice of the supreme court, nor judge of any other court, sheriff, justice of the peace, nor any person or persons possessed of any office of profit under the government of this state, shall be entitled to a seat, either in the Senate or in the General Assembly ; but, on being elected and taking his seat, his office shall be considered vacant : and no person holding any office of profit under the government of the United States shall be entitled to a seat in either house.

3. The credit of the state shall not be directly or indirectly loaned in any case.

4. The legislature shall not, in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, of the state, which shall singly, or in the aggregate with any previous debts or liabilities, at any time exceed one hundred thousand dollars, except for purposes of war, or to repel invasion, or to suppress insurrection, unless the same shall be authorized by a law for some single object or work, to be distinctly specified therein; which law shall provide the ways and means, exclusive of loans, to pay the interest of such debt or liability as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt or liability within thirty-five years from the time of the contracting thereof, and shall be irrevocable until such debt or liability, and the interest thereon, are fully paid and discharged: and no such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received the sanction of a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election: and all money to be raised by the authority of such law shall be applied only to the specific object stated therein, and to the payment of the debt thereby created. This section shall not be construed to refer to any money that has been, or may be deposited with this state by the government of the United States.

1. No divorce shall be granted by the legislature.

2. No lottery shall be authorized by this state; and no ticket in any lottery not authorized by a law of this state shall be bought or sold within the state.

3. The legislature shall not pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or depriving a party of any remedy for enforcing a contract which existed when the contract was made.

4. To avoid improper influences, which may result from intermixing in one and the same act such things as have no proper relation to each other, every law shall embrace but one object, and that shall be expressed in the title.

5. The laws of this state shall begin in the following style: "Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey."

6. The fund for the support of free schools, and all money, stock, and other property, which may hereafter be appropriated for that purpose, or received into the treasury under the provision of any law heretofore passed to augment the said fund, shall be securely invested, and remain a perpetual fund; and the income thereof, except so much as it may be judged expedient to apply to an increase of the capital, shall be annually appropriated to the support of public schools, for the equal benefit of all the people of the state: and it shall not be competent for the legislature to borrow, appropriate, or use the said fund, or any part thereof, for any other purpose, under any pretence whatever.

7. No private or special law shall be passed authorizing the sale of any lands belonging, in whole or in part, to a minor or minors, or other persons, who may at the time be under any legal disability to act for themselves.

8. The assent of three-fifths of the members elected to each house shall be requisite to the passage of every law for granting, continuing, altering, amending, or renewing charters for banks or money corporations; and all such charters shall be limited to a term not exceeding twenty years.

9. Individuals or private corporations shall not be authorized to take private property for public use, without just compensation first made to the owners.

10. The legislature may at any time vest in the circuit courts or courts of common pleas, within the several counties of this state, chancery powers, so far as relates to the foreclosure of mortgages or sale of mortgaged premises.

Section VIII.

1. Members of the legislature shall, before they enter on the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

And members elect of the Senate or General Assembly are hereby empowered to administer to each other the said oath or affirmation.

ARTICLE V.

Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor: if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it: if after such reconsideration, a majority of the whole number of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved of by a majority of the whole number of that house, it shall become a law; but, in neither house shall the vote be taken on the same day on which the bill shall be returned to it: and in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively: if any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days (Sunday excepted after it shall have been presented to him, the same

As you are about to close your important business, to prevent any delay occasioned by my absence, I hereby resign my office, as president of this convention. I do this with great reluctance, as I would place my signature to the constitution which you are prepared to offer to the people of the state, for their acceptance, with great confidence that it will accomplish the important objects for which it is intended.

"The present constitution of the state is so radically defective, that it affords no check upon the legislative power, or any security for the rights and privileges of the people.

"I tender you my sincere thanks for the kindness and indulgence you have manifested towards me during your session, and which I shall retain in grateful remembrance.

"I am, with great respect, your obedient servant,

GENTLEMEN,

I beg permission to detain you a moment, while I express my deep sense of the distinguished honour which the convention has conferred upon me.

My most respectful and grateful acknowledgments are tendered to the convention, for the signal distinction of having been selected to preside over its deliberations.

I assure you, gentlemen, that I duly appreciate this flattering evidence of your confidence and regard, and that it will be held by me, while life endures, in the most pleasing and grateful remembrance.

The situation of presiding officer in such an assembly as this is, and convened, as we are, for purposes of such high and momentous import, is indeed a post of honour. I feel it more sensibly, because it was entirely unexpected, and, considering how many distinguished gentlemen surround me, unmerited.

I return you my most grateful thanks for the kind expression of your approbation of the manner in which I have discharged the duties that the convention were pleased to impose upon me.

Most sincerely do I regret that those duties call upon me now, to stand in the place of the venerable and distinguished individual who was called by acclamation to preside over our deliberations, at the first meeting of the convention. And sure I am, in saying this, I do but express the sentiments of every member of the convention.

No one enjoys in a higher degree than that gentlemen, the love, respect, and confidence of the people of New Jersey. His name, as president of the convention to the constitution we have prepared, would have been a tower of strength in its defence. His heart was in the work, and we all regret that sickness has compelled his resignation, and deprived the convention of the benefit of his counsel and assistance in the closing scene of its labours.

My best efforts have been devoted to the faithful discharge of the responsible duties of the chair, and if, in the discharge of those duties, the feelings of any gentleman have been wounded, or his rights invaded, I beg him to attribute it to accident, and not to design. I return the members of the convention my thanks for their uniform support and kind treatment.

And now, gentlemen, allow me to congratulate the convention upon the happy result of its labours, and the uniform spirit of harmony which has marked our deliberations.

The members of the convention have faithfully discharged their duty, by conforming to the honourable and patriotic example set them by their constituents.

My sincere hope is, that the constitution we have framed may find favour with those who committed this high trust to us, and redound to the lasting welfare and happiness of the state.

Accept, gentlemen, my best wishes for your future health and prosperity, and a speedy and happy meeting with your respective families.

The secretary and assistant secretary then returned thanks for the honour respectively conferred upon them, and for the approbation expressed by the convention of the manner in which they had severally discharged the duties of their offices.

On motion of Mr. Zabriskie,

The convention then adjourned sine die.

ALEXANDER WURTS,
